DoD STARBASE

DoD STARBASE: “To engage elementary students with Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) to help our next generation meet future advanced technology needs.”

Who we are

STARBASE Idaho is an innovative science, technology, engineering, and math outreach program funded by the Department of Defense. Sponsored and supported by the Idaho National Guard, the program provides 25 hours of STEM instruction to 5th grade students. The goal of DoD STARBASE is to raise the interest and improve the knowledge and skills of youth traditionally under-represented in STEM careers, providing a highly educated and skilled American workforce that can meet the advanced technology requirements of America.

What we do

DoD STARBASE is the only national program focused on introducing STEM to elementary students. The intensive 25 hours of hands-on STEM curriculum introduced to STARBASE students is aligned with National Science Standards. The program targets upper elementary age students because during this time period in children’s lives, they are developing an image of their capabilities. By the time most STEM programs are available for youth in middle and high school, STARBASE has already introduced youth to the idea that a future in STEM is possible.

A visiting class explores new technologies such as computer aided design (CAD) and robotics, as well as concepts of physics and chemistry while relating them to math, inquiry and the engineering process. Our goal is to offer STEM equipment, expertise and resources that may not currently available in elementary schools. With the help of local STEM businesses, industry, educational institutions and professionals, as well as the military resources on Base, DoD STARBASE can introduce students to STEM careers.

We look forward to teaching and learning alongside your student!
